Letter from the Editor

The job of the editor is to turn out a product which will please the majority of the readers. Never will all be satisfied with the finished product as tastes inevitably differ. Is a pictorial account of the year enough? Should there be reams & reams of writing? Should essays and poems, regardless of quality and general appeal be included?

By precedent, established in the past 3 years, The Yearbook should consist mainly of pictures with little writing. This year an effort has been made to add some articles of general interest. It would be a poor world if governed by tradition, however, tradition is accepted and new things greeted with scepticism.

All the waffle said above can be condensed to "I've changed it a bit, hopefully for the better".

Here is the 1974 Yearbook then, I hope for your enjoyment.

Prizegiving 1973

A fanfare of trumpets, played by members of the school band, heralded both the arrival of our special guests, H.E. the Governor Sir Edwin Leather and his entourage.

The evenings activities began, as usual with the opening remarks by the Chairman of the Board of Governors of Warwick Academy, Mr. Gordon Kendall. He spoke of the problems of maintaining discipline both in school and within the home and of problems of loiterers about school property.

One of the highlights of the evening was the unveiling of a portrait of Mr. William S. Purvis, one of the major benefactors of the school. The hall in which the prizegiving was held was dedicated by Mr. Purvis to the memory of his wife, Mrs. Phoebe Purvis. The Portrait was unveiled by a close friend of the late Mr. Purvis.

Next on the programme, was the introduction of the governor and his subsequent address to the audience. Far from the "stuffed-shirt" sort of speech we of the student body expected, we were given instead a highly amusing speech, colourfully illustrated with anecdotes from His Excellency's various expereinces. However, although his speech was humourous, it also contained many precious words of wisdom directed at the student body.

Following the governor's address was the distribution of prizes. For each recipient he had a kind word of advice or a friendly remark.

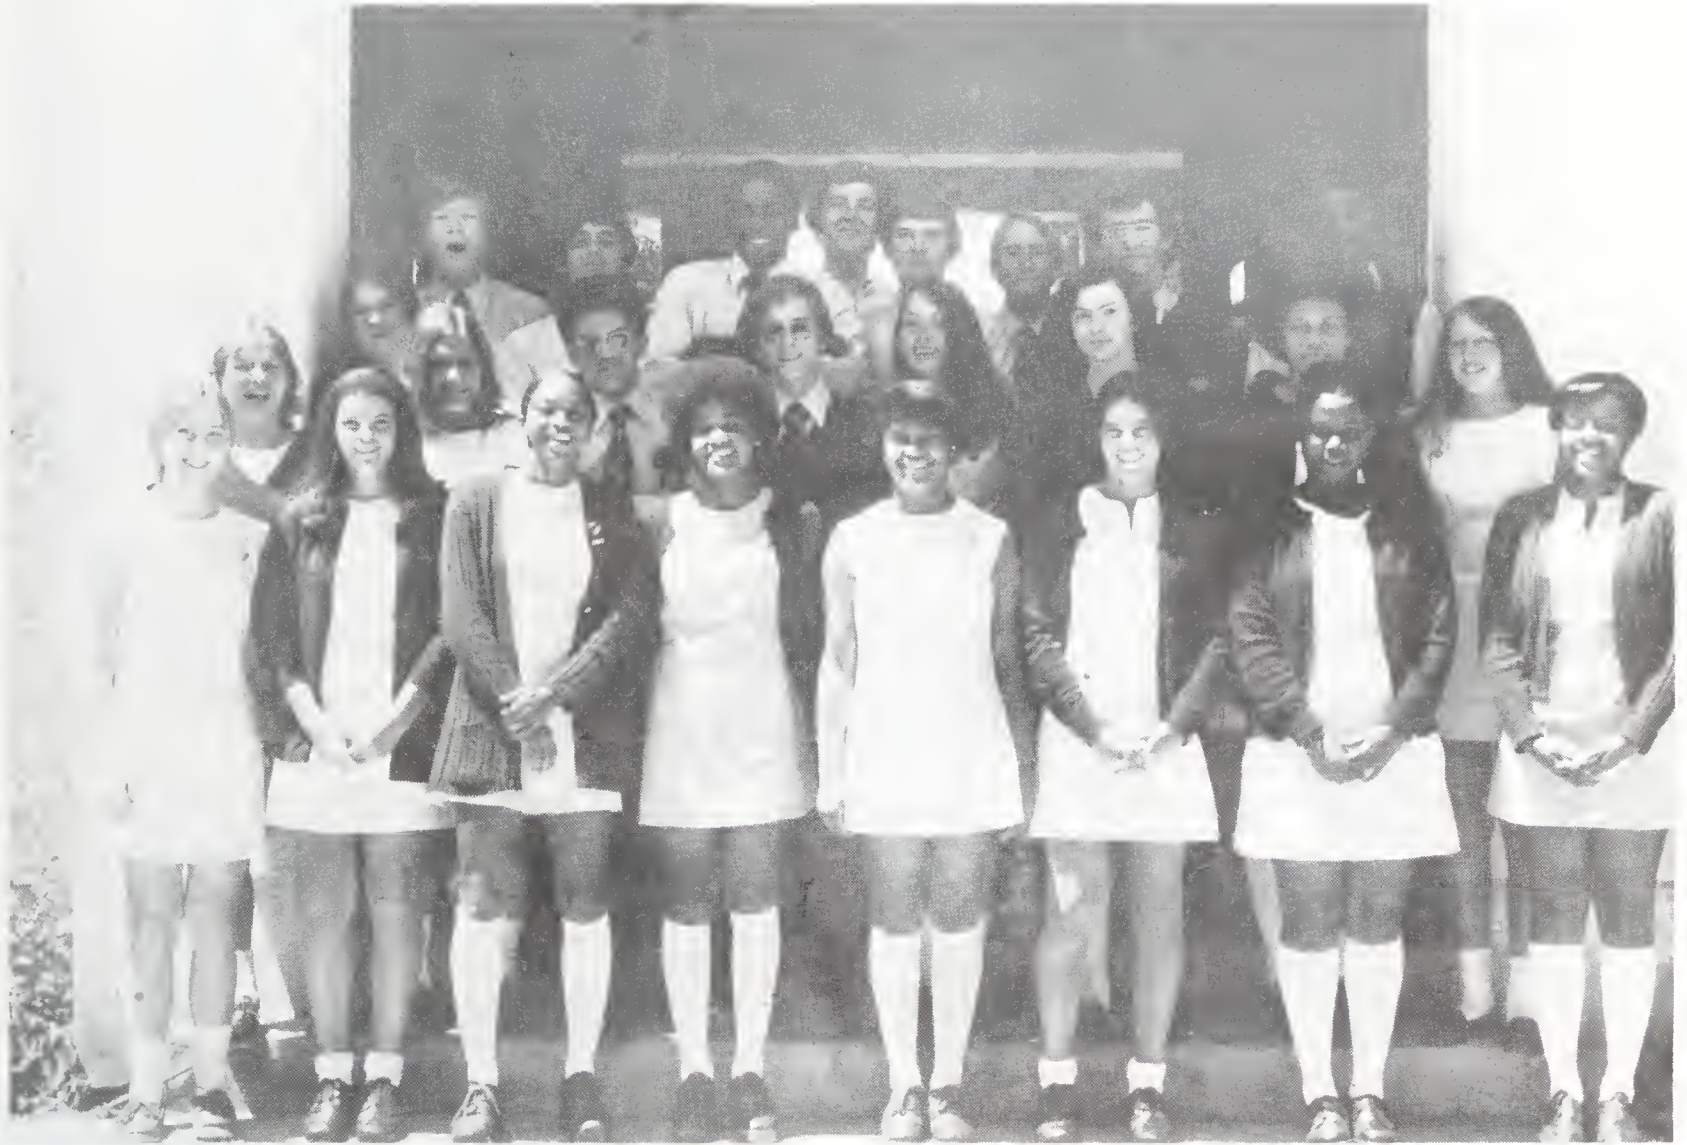

At the end of the Prizegiving the Governor maintained the jovial atmosphere he had established in his speech by declaring a half-day holiday for the students on the following day. This he later amended to a full days holiday much to the delight of the students.

Guadeamus Igitur was then rendered and never have the words been sung with so much enthusiasm.

The ceremonies ended on a happy note but slightly embarrassing for Denton our Head boy as when he proposed Three Cheers for His Excellency the Gooveanp

All in all a very successful prizegiving.

The Prefects Revue

At the end of the Christmas term a spirit of fun romps through the Halls of the school and the most undesirable thing at this festive time is having to do schoolwork. Some form of organised entertainment is therefore received well by students and staff alike. It was to this end that the prefects decided to perform a Revue.

When the curtains opened the cast were a little nervous due to their lack of practice, their doubts were soon laid to rest by the tremendous response to the first skit in which Adrian Penn, as a chemistry teacher, was doused with beakers of urine. A malicious rumour was spread that the beakers contained water with artificial colouring but the audience did not accept this preposterous lie.

Next we saw Trevor Madeiros host "My Speech" in which three teachers were summoned to the stage to maintain a 1 minute discourse on a subject supplied. Mr. Davies received a prize of an orange mineral and a bag of barbecue chips for his speech on "Ten reasons why not to play Rugby". From the standards attained by the three competitors, the other two being Mr. Rodrigues and Mr. Penn a recommendation will be forwarded to the Administration that teachers attend two speech & drama lessons a week.

The female choir performed a number of womens' liberation songs to the accompaniment of wolf whistles from the audience who were observing the fashion show put on by the boys simultaneously. It was said after that "Blake Marshall should wear a skirt more often; it suits him."

Perhaps the most successful skit included Miss Jope as a Movie star who promenaded up and down the stage with the male lead, the suave, debonair Robert Corday. The climax saw the stunt man Denton Hurdle covered with cream pie claim a well earned kiss from the heroine to Robert Corday's chagrin.

Charles Swan, in true Charlie Chaplin style, had the audience rocking in the aisles along with Trevor Madeiros and Cindy Atcheson in a mime suggested to the Prefects by Mike Wagner.

No Christmas celebration would be complete without a Santa Claus. Denton Hurdle fitted the role excellently with a coating of soot from the chimney over his face, but amazingly not on his clothes or white beard.

The Vienna Boys Choir made a somewhat unharmonious effort with a song written by Michael Landis.

The Finale came with a somewhat adulterated rendition of the 12 days of Christmas. Although not given a standing ovation, a number of encores were required.

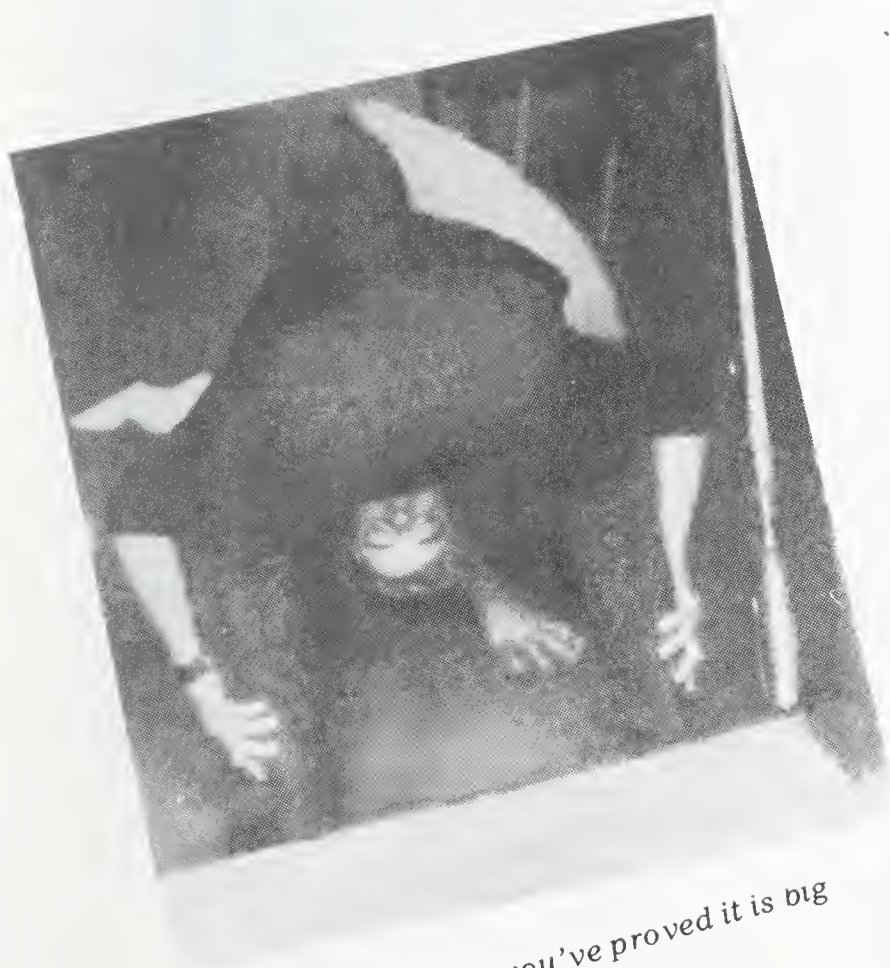

Thanks to Mr. Rickets for his piano accompanied in which he showed great versatility and failed to panic in the most extenuating circumstances.

By The Skin Of Our Teeth

During mid-March it was quite a common sight at Warwick Academy to see a dinosaur sitting in the middle of the assembly hall or to hear a merry refrain coming from the lips of a mammoth. Any poor, unsuspecting soul who witnessed the above and thought that he was either in dire need of glasses or psychiatric help should be relieved because both were parts of the school play held on March 28th, 29th and 30th. The play "The Skin of Our Teeth" was written by Thornton Wilder. The comedy deals with the Antrobus family and their maid, Sabina who face and survive such problems as the Flood and the end of the Ice Age by the skin of their teeth.

The play was a good one for them to perform as it required within its three acts, not more than two separate scenes. It seems to have a hidden meaning though and there are several religious references throughout.

Trurina Cook, as Sabina, the maid, is the central character in the play. Her timing was good but it was her many comical facial expressions which virtually had the audience rolling in the aisles. Trurina's acting is very good and we hope she will continue in this tradition.

Shane Marshall, as George Antrobus, was also very good and delighted, and I am sure shocked quite a few people with his acting capabilities.

Lisa Marshall, as Mrs. Antrobus was perfect in her role as a domineering wife and mother.

The play was directed by Miss Jann Falcon, Speech & Drama teacher at Warwick. It was her first attempt at a play production of this scale and I must say, it was a very good effort.

Special mention should be made of those who worked behind the scenes. Spencer Critchley and Richard DeMoura did splendid jobs at lighting and in constructing the sets. They also lent a hand to Dorset Trapnell in stage management. Judy Murray and Jayne Hilton in costumes & props also deserve recognition.

All the students taking part in the play should be proud, not only because the play was a success, but also because this was the first time in almost four years that a play performed at Warwick has had a cast composed completely of students.

Benefit Dinner for Michael Wagner

Something tragic always seems to happen when you least expect it and invariably, it happens to one of the nicest people you know. At first, upon hearing the news you wonder at the injustice of it all but then you stop to think if there is anything you can do to help.

These were some of the reactions at Warwick Academy in March when we learned of the serious accident in which Michael Wagner, the boys basketball coach and friend of all, had been involved.

Benefits on Mike's behalf blossomed all over the place, particularly when it was learned that Mike had recently changed his job and at that particular time was ineligible for insurance.

Warwick Academy decided that, since Mike was such a good friend something should be done for him. And it was. Thanks largely due to the efforts of Judy Murray & Karen Cabral, two fifth formers and members of "Young Life", an organisation in which Mike took an active part, a dinner was organised to raise money for Mike.

The dinner itself was held on Friday, March the 22nd. It was a buffet style dinner and dinners were helped in every way by the fifth and fourth form girls whose aid Judy and Karen had enlisted. These girls prepared, cooked and served the meal themselves using up much of their precious spare time in the process, but it was all for a good cause.

The meal consisting of: ham, turkey, potatoes, string beans, beets, coleslaw and rolls was followed by dessert for those who could find room for it.

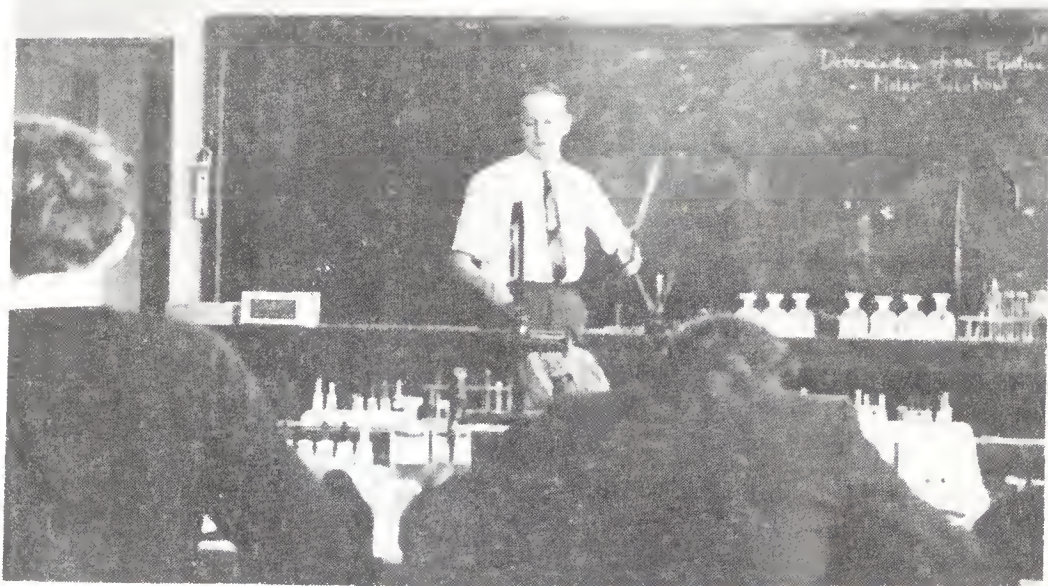

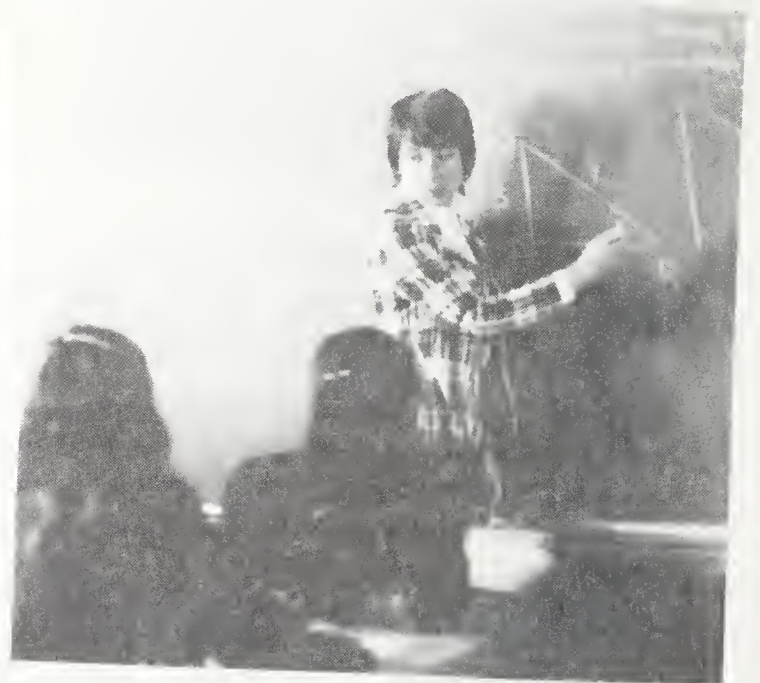

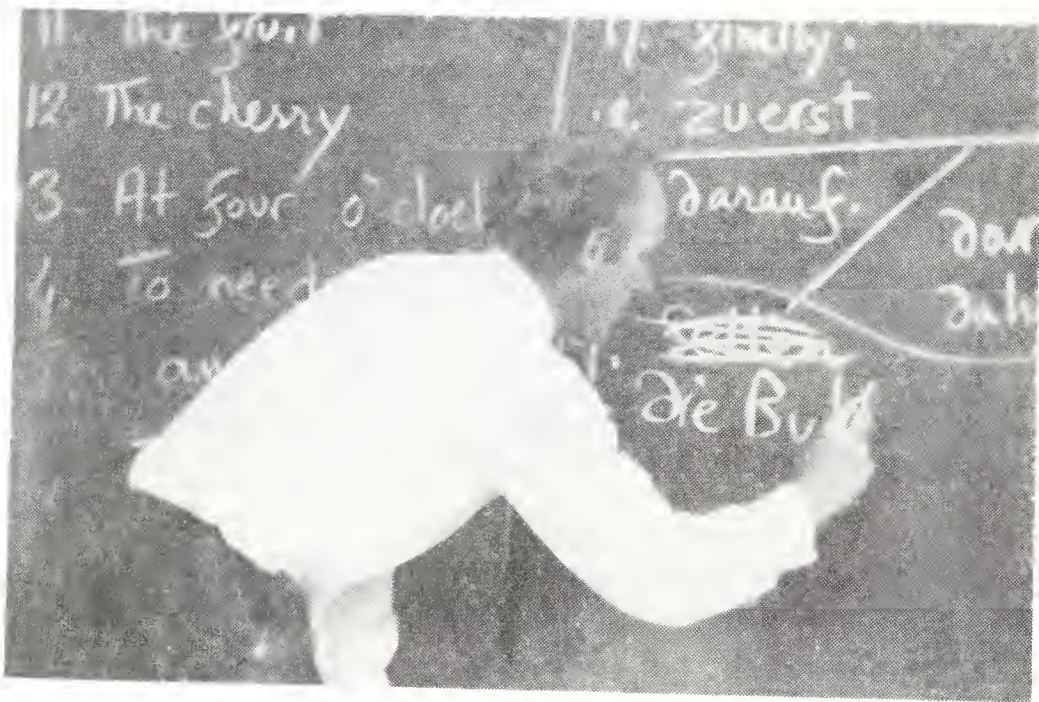

After the dinner raffle tickets were sold and the door prize drawn for. Nearly all of the prizes had been donated by various sources.

Next, for everyones enjoyment, came the Young Life Choir who sang a wide variety of songs including Mike's favourite "Kum-Bye-Ah".

A pleasant evening was brought to a close by a dutch auction for a water colour kindly donated by Mr. Desmond Fountain.

A total of a $1,000. was made altogether in the evening, again thanks to Judy & Karen and all those who helped either by attending or working.

SPORTS

FOOTBALL

For the past few years football has been the weak spot in the Sports Curriculum. From the abysmal results of this season it is to be concluded that this weakness is fast becoming a tradition.

The senior team displayed great intelligence this season and recognised their distinct limitations, they avoided the ignominious defeats suffered in the past by avoiding confrontations with the strong teams. This strategy enabled draws in 3 games, a victory was too elusive and the only bright spot of the season was the 4 - 4 draw with the Bank of Bermuda the commercial league champions of the 1972-1973 season.

Thanks are due to Mr. Young and Mr. Rance for their perseverance and stoicism in the face of insurmountable difficulties i.e. the lack of skill of most of the players.

INTERMEDIATES

The intermediates ventured forth against the more proficient teams and although they lost the majority of the games their game was of a much higher standard than that of the seniors. It was a much more cohesive effort and the results tend to belie the standard achieved. This team were dedicated to the improvement of their game and deserve praise for their efforts.

Once again thanks to Mr. Young.

It was hoped that the Junior team this year would be the saviours of Warwick Academy Football. This was not to be so. After the initial victory over Saltus only one other victory was recorded.

Mr. Harper was responsible for their coaching.

SCHOOL v STAFF

At the outset of a staff match much is heard of boys promising to repay the teachers a few debts in the form of kicks placed at strategic points of the body. This was not to be. As the game progressed the boys fell victim to foul after foul; this sample of teacher brutality enabled the staff to score a 1-0 lead at half-time.

Mr. Davies the referee is, no doubt, a latin teacher of good calibre but it is suggested that he does not take to teaching Maths as it was found to the boys indignation that there were 12 staff players on the field. The goal was not however disallowed. A last minute penalty by James Swan caused Mr. Rance to bite the proverbial dust and the game ended in a 1-1 tie.

The staff should be commended for their efforts. Lack of breath in the later stages of the game should serve as warning to over indulgence of alcohol and cigarettes.

This years House competition saw a good battle for overall champion between Rhodes and Morgan. The Pressure was on Rhodes after Morgan secured the Junior Division title.

In the final game of the Senior Division Morgan and Rhodes fought it out in a “winner take all” situation. It was a see-saw battle with the lead changing hands four times. Rhodes emerged victorious by a 3-2 score.

RUGBY

In the Junior and Intermediate Divisions the Rugby teams relied upon raw ability and lacked the knowledge of what to do with the ball when they received it. Both teams endeavoured hard and they succeeded in winning the majority of their games. In the Whitney Sevens Tournament Juniors and Intermediates were both runners up.

The Senior VII played magnificently throughout the season under the coaching of Mr. Davies. Of the nine players who played, six had at one time or another trained and played with the Teachers Rugby Club. Denton Hurdle played for the first XV and Stephen Lusher established himself in the 2nd. XV.

The Senior squad remained undefeated and captured the Whitney Sevens' Cup and the Schoolboy Sevens' Cup in both cases defeating an older and much heavier Sixth Form team.

Much of the credit should be given to Mr. Davies.

HOCKEY

This sport is one of the strong-points of the girls and this year proved no exception.

The First VII proved their skill when they played in the Bermuda Ladies Hockey Association's 7 a-side tournament. Nervous at the prospect of playing more experienced sides and dampened in more than one sense by rainy weather the girls ventured forth against the "Paraquets", an adult team and, to their and the spectators surprise, won 2-0.

In their second game they were not so successful and were knocked out of the tournament by the "Bluebirds". It was a fine effort and brought to light the potential of many of our players as regard Bermuda Hockey Ladies Association league Hockey.

Success came in the XI a side tournament with the team cruising through the quarter and semi-finals against Sandys and Whitney respectively.

The final was very tense and the girls were supported by a vociferous group of four boys who not only gave the team advice but also gave a few helpful hints to the umpire. The game resulted in a draw and extra time seemed the answer. Unfortunately, however, the organisers decided to award Prospect the trophy as they had more short corners. The team was extremely disappointed as it is customary in finals for the decision to be made, in the case of a draw, with extra time.

NETBALL

As can be seen from the results all of the teams played reasonably well maintaining a relatively equal record of wins and losses.

It was perhaps unfortunate that more players did not attend the school practices as it was evident in the House Matches that there was much latent talent which could have transferred the Inter-school teams from mediocrity to excellence.

The competition was evenly contested and there were many close and exciting games.

The final standings saw Rhodes emerge victors with Morgan close runners up.
